The Treaty of Paris- Done at Paris, the tenth day of the second month, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixty three marking the end to the Seven Years' War with this definitive Treaty of Peace and Friendship between his Britannick Majesty, the Most Christian King, and the King of Spain. "VII" (as presented below) of this Treaty so establishes the British and the French Territories on the continent of America.

VII

In order to re-establish peace on solid and durable foundations, and to remove for ever all subject of dispute with regard to the limits of the British and French territories on the continent of America; it is agreed, that, for the future, the confines between the dominions of his Britannick Majesty, and those of his most Christian Majesty, in that part of the world, shall be fixed irrevocably by a line drawn along the middle of this River Mississippi, from its source, to the River Iberville, and from thence, by a line drawn along the middle of this River, and the Lakes Maurepas and Pontchartrain, to the sea; and for this purpose, the most Christian King cedes in full right, and guaranties to his Britannick Majesty, the River and Port of the Mobile, and every thing which he possesses, or ought to possess, on the left side of the River Mississippi, except the town of New Orleans, and the island in which it is situated, which shall remain to France; provided that the navigation of the River Mississippi, shall be equally free, as well to the subjects of Great Britain, as to those of France, in its whole breadth and length, from its source to the sea, and expressly that part, which is between the said island of New Orleans, and the right bank of that River, as well as the passage both in and out of its mouth: It is further stipulated, that the vessels belonging to the subjects of either nation, shall not be stopped, visited, or subjected to the payment of any duty whatsoever. The stipulations, inserted in the IVth article, in favour of the inhabitants of Canada, shall also take place, with regard to the inhabitants of the countries ceded by this article.

THE PROCLAMATION OF 1763

October 7, 1763, with regards to the Treaty of Paris 1763, Given at the Court of St. James, the 7th day of October 1763, our Royal Proclamation, hereby to publish and declare to all our loving subjects that we have, with the advice of our said Privy Council, granted our letters patent under our Great Seal of Great Britain,...

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE OF 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America
July 4, 1776.

On the 2d of July, a resolution declaring the colonies free and independent States, was adopted. A declaration to that effect was, on the same and the following days, taken into further consideration. Finally, on the 4th of July, the Declaration of Independence was agreed to, engrossed on paper, signed by John Hancock as president, and sent to the legislatures of the States. It was also ordered to be entered upon the Journals of Congress, and on the 2d of August, a copy engrossed on parchment was signed by all but one of the fifty-six signers whose names are appended to it. That one was Matthew Thornton, of New Hampshire, who on taking his seat in November asked and obtained the privilege of signing it. Several who signed it on the 2d of August were absent when it was adopted on the 4th of July, but approving of it they thus signified their approbation.

1.  this nineteenth day of the fifth month in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety six, I, the undersigned, do hereby certify that the above mentioned Declaration of Independence so appended by all except one Matthew Thornton on the 2d of August in the year of our Lord One thousand seven hundred and seventy six and by approving of it, thus signify my approbation.
